Observations of the Arizona Senate Republican Primary Ballot Test

To understand how this primary election is taking shape, it is helpful to review the ballot test among the three different groups of Republicans that constitute the sample. Among respondents who identify as a “Trump Republican” (40%), Joe Arpaio (36%) leads Martha McSally (32%) by 4 points and Kelli Ward (26%) by 10 points. Among respondents that identify as a “traditional Republican” (26% of sample), Martha McSally (41%) has a commanding lead of 19 points over Kelli Ward (22%) and 21 points over Joe Arpaio (20%). Lastly, among respondents identifying as an evangelical, Christian conservative (21% of sample), Martha McSally (36%) leads Kelli Ward (29%) by seven points.

Although the Election Day is a long way off, if Martha McSally can maintain her support levels among these three groups of Republican voters she will be in a good position to win. However, if Joe Arpaio or Kelli Ward exit the race before Election Day it is very possible Martha McSally’s lead could contract and turn the race into a very close head to head contest. We shall see.

Top Federal Issues Arizona Republican Primary Voters Want Addressed

To truly understand the national issues and problems that motivate Republican primary voters, we asked an open-ended verbatim question before reading them a list of issues to choose from. The verbatim responses are attached to this document and we encourage you to read them. In summary, the top three issues that respondents want President Trump and the Republican Congress to address the most are immigration and the border wall followed by jobs and the cost of healthcare. The following table shows a ranking of the listed issues that was read to respondents after the open-ended verbatim question.

“And from the following list of issues, which do you think is the top priority that President Trump and the Republican Congress should be addressing the most?”

Donald Trump Job Approval

President Trump’s job approval is very strong among Arizona Republican primary voters, with 82% approving of the job the President is doing and only 14% disapproving. The President can do no wrong in the eyes of the Republican base in Arizona. For the Republican candidates for United States Senate, there is clearly upside in support for anyone that can demonstrate loyalty and support for the President and his agenda.

Congressional Republican Job Approval

With the Republican Party in full control of Congress, we prefer to ask voters if they approve or disapprove of “the job the Republicans in Congress are doing”, rather than the traditional “the job Congress is doing”. Among likely Arizona Republican primary voters only 23% approve of the job Republicans in Congress are doing, 65% disapprove of the job they are doing and 12% were unsure or did not have an opinion.

Sen. Jeff Flake Job Approval

Among all respondents, only 18% approve of the job Jeff flake is doing, 74% disapprove of the job he is doing and 8% were unsure or do not have an opinion.

Gov. Doug Ducey Job Approval

Unlike some other elected officials in Arizona, Governor Doug Ducey has a strong job approval rating among Republican primary voters with 59% approving of the job he is doing, 26% disapproving and 15% of respondents not having an opinion.

Sen. John McCain Job Approval and Opinions of Retiring from U.S. Senate

Among all respondents, only 24% approve of the job John McCain is doing, 72% disapprove of the job he is doing, and 4% are unsure or do not have an opinion. The survey included a question asking respondents their opinion of Senator McCain retiring or continuing to serve in the United States Senate considering his health condition. Among all respondents, 77% thought the Senator should retire and only 19% thought he should continue to serve.

Conclusion

The survey finds Congresswoman Martha McSally as the current frontrunner in the race to succeed Senator Jeff Flake. However, former Maricopa County Sheriff Joe Arpaio and former State Senator Kelli Ward are formidable candidates with very respectable amounts of voter support. We are still a long way from Election Day and are likely to see changes as candidates spend time and resources appealing to likely Republican primary voters. We look forward to tracking this contest into August.

MALE	65+	REPUBLICAN	TRUMP	They are spending too much time on the business of trying to "dump Trump." Spend more time doing their job and trying to get this country back to the way it's supposed to be. FEMALE	65+	INDEPENDENT	TRUMP	Republican senatorial candidates would support the President of the United States and improve the economy by improving trade relations and straightening out problems we have with countries like China and North Korea. Another issue is building the wall to save us from the cost of having illegals invade our state and destroying our education system. If we didn't have to pay for all these illegals and have teachers spending most of their time trying to help students who don't even speak English and don't understand the culture or our school system, we would be able to pay the teachers more and our children would be doing a lot better in math and science so that they could go to college or persue a trade and have a better life in our country as our citizens.
